Economy

Nova Scotia's economic growth for 2016 is expected to be moderate throughout a number of different industry sectors. RBC Economics is forecasting GDP growth to accelerate to 1.3% in 2016, a slight decrease from the Q4 2015 projection of 1.8%. Strong construction activity resulting from the continuation of Halifax's major projects, coupled with continued growth in U.S. demand, are expected to contribute to this wide-ranging growth. In 2015, non-energy exports mitigated the decline in natural gas exports, experiencing gains of 13% for 2015. The decline in natural gas production in 2015 is expected to have a smaller impact on GDP growth this year. Significant declines in natural gas exports in recent years has resulted in energy exports representing only a small portion of overall exports. A weak Canadian dollar, coupled with favourable conditions in the U.S. will continue to bolster other export categories in the province.

Market Overview

Overall, Nova Scotia's office vacancy rate remained relatively steady at 13.6% in the first quarter of 2016. Despite this stability, there was significant shifts within each submarket. Halifax's Central Business District (CBD) vacancy rate increased to 14.3% from 12.8% last quarter. Significant moves included a small number of tenants vacating 5670 Spring Garden Road & the Centennial building. Suburban market vacancy decreased from 14.4% to 12.9% with the completion of Rank Inc's Baywest Centre, a 115,000 square foot (sf) expansion to an existing property that arrived almost fully leased. The Suburban submarket of Bedford remained relatively stagnant at 17.8% vacancy in Q1, with Bedford House & Sunnyside Place welcoming new tenants this quarter.

Outlook

According to TD Economics, an increase in demand for international exports, combined with increased demand from the U.S. are expected to "underpin the province's robust economic performance" this year. Despite a decrease in natural gas prices, BP and Shell continue their offshore exploration for natural gas as part of their $2 billion commitment, which according to RBC Economics creates "upside potential for the industry in the longer term" (past their forecast horizon). RBC Economics is also expecting manufacturers in particular to benefit from recent investments in tire and aerospace plants throughout the province. The office market is still expected to experience a significant increase in vacancy, due to an unprecedented inventory surge of approximately 550,000 sf that remains under construction, with limited preleasing.
